Andrew Flagel has led, worked in, and offered presentations on college admissions for more than 25 years. He has been a featured speaker on the college admissions process at events and programs around the world, including the Global Youth Summit on the Future of Medicine, the National Young Leaders Conference, and the Washington Youth Summit on the Environment, just to name a few. Dr. Flagel has also been a featured guest on CNN, C-SPAN, and CBS Evening News, and his quotes appear in recent stories in USA Today, The Washington Post, and The Boston Globe – he was once even quoted in Teen Vogue!

Dr. Flagel is Senior Vice President of Students & Enrollment at Brandeis University, where he oversees the offices of admissions and financial aid (among many others). He is also a Senior Lecturer in the Brandeis College of Arts and Sciences, a Senior Research Fellow for the National Research Center for College and University Admissions, and serves on the Educational Advisory Board to US News and World Report and on the Board of Trustees of the Tremont School. He was previously regional director of admissions at George Washington University, director of admissions for the University of Michigan's Flint campus, and Dean of Admissions at George Mason University, as well as a featured college admissions blogger for both My College Options and Monster.

Vice President Flagel has an undergraduate degree in philosophy and psychology and a master of arts in education from GW, and a Ph.D. in Education from Michigan State University. His presentations are brief, informative, highly interactive, and, in his own words, reasonably entertaining!
